

Claudia San Miguel is Assistant Professor of Criminal Justice within the Department of Behavioral at Texas A&M International University in Laredo, Texas. She is the co-author of The Death Penalty: Constitutional Issues, Commentaries, and Cases and Everyday Ethics for the Criminal Justice Professional. Dr. San Miguel has also published in the area of intelligence-led policing strategies, anti-bully programs, and community crime prevention. She was the co-editor of an issue of the Journal of Social and Ecological Boundaries entitled Immigration: Crime, Victimization, and Media Representation. Dr. San Miguel is working on research involving the trafficking of women and children and has recently traveled to England, Poland, Sweden, and Austria to help form collaborative relationships with their anti-trafficking task force. She has also taught courses for the Department of State in Roswell, New Mexico on crime types and typologies and global human trafficking at the International Law Enforcement Academy.